OWEN BROTHERS

Indications.
WASHINGTON, April 30.—Ohio Valley and Tennessee—Local rains and partly cloudy weather; northwesterly winds; higher barometer, lower temperature.

NOT

A mean looking suit among them, not an overhand one, good enough for a great many occasions and none too poor to be called cheap for the price. We refer to the pile of men's suits going to-day for an even $5 per suit. We'd like your attention clear through this ad, but if you profit by what we've said this far, you're so time to lose in reading—others are buying a while you're reading.

Today, remember, not to-morrow.

Every suit sold "as is" without returns.

Neckwear. Surplus of all sorts. The only wear we can put upon throatstock is beautiful. The man who thinks big prices make fine neckwear finer, labors under a wrong impression. The fine productions this country affords are among our this spring's selections. Below the glass there's a choice among a thousand at a quarter. Another solid case, your pick for 35c. Silk fronts with crown satin backs 49c. Neckwear tumbles the very moment we start to sell it.

Six in a box, and a hundred boxes. Beauties, 50c or 2 for a dollar. With this stock and prices at your disposal, none need be without a beautiful supply of beautiful neckwear.

Nothing about suspenders to-day.

Fine suits for men, for young men, for nobly young men, men who dress, i. e., dress fine. The 4 button cutaway frock, the straight cut double, the cutaway sack, the Prince Albert double or single breasted frock, all occupy space on our shelves.

For an example, we'll take the one suit, lot 7317, fine brown corker worn, as fine, as well trimmed, as stylish cut, as well made as you often find with merchant tailors—$20 per suit. A hand some plain sack suit to be seen in window to-day, $20, others above and below.

Separate pants. We've neglected to call your attention to several new patterns which arrived from our factory this week. Wear re-tails $1.25, $1.75, $2, $2.50. More show, less wear, $3, $3.50, $4. The really fine garments in this line are our large line of Globe Mills fancies, $5 to $6.50. It is safe to calculate on seeing more here at less figures by 20 per cent. Jean pants, beginning at good. All trashy, tricky garments excluded.

Boy's sailor suits, kites and English knit jerseys. Selections beyond your most sanguine expectations. Neat and cheap, to the richer, costliest of 10's spring wear are here stacked to be looked at, thought over, bought, worn, worn out, bought again, and so on.

Sailor suits at $1.25, no better than a score of others sell at $1.75 to $2. Jerseys at $3.50, and others.

Boy's shirt waists speak for themselves. No trick to find common affairs, such as are ordinarily kept in small shops, and just as easy to find the better and best, if you read.

$1, $1.25, $1.50, some plain white linen, others in fine French percale.

Straw hats are back waiting for spring—we'll push them forward as soon as enough to save you paying a dollar for a 50c hat.

Think of fine fur hats, this spring's nobly shaped going for $1.50, $1.75, $2, $2.25, $2.50, before straw hat time.

Ohio Legislature.

COLUMBUS, April 30.—SENATE.—Bills passed: House bill authorizing counties to erect permanent buildings for the incurable insane; South Charleston to issue $3,000 in bonds, for street improvements; for payment of Morgan land claim; Senate bill increasing compensation of teachers at blind asylums.

HOUSE.—Bills passed: House bill compelling county surveyors to keep records for general use, empowering township trustees to improve school lands; Senate bill amending child laws so that township trustees have same authority regarding underground ditches that county commissioners now have.

The Myers parole bill is now a law, the House and Senate agreeing to the conference committee report on it. In its present form the measure allows the parole of convicts by the penitentiary managers for good behavior. It creates a permanent criminal class, but the life sentence provision in the original bill has been stricken out. The measure now provides for prisoners receiving a general sentence, and on their arrival at the penitentiary, it is found that this is the third time they can be kept in the penitentiary for the maximum term for the crime of which they were convicted. If released on parole they can be brought back by order of the managers and incarcerated for the remainder of the maximum term, if they misbehave or commit any offense.

The Cincinnati Times-Star gives this account of a breeze in the House, Thursday: As the regular order was the third reading of bills, the Democrats wanted the rules suspended and miscellaneous business made the order of the hour.

Under this plan any bill or scheme could be brought in. Mr. Bohl made a motion which at once stirred up a dust. Republicans, who shouted "yes and yes," Mr. Bruner in the chair, and, as usual, heeded not the minority. The vote was a voice, and the speaker declared "The yeas have it." This trampled upon the minority, and the members were on their feet in rage, demanding their rights as members of the House.

George, proceeding to speak for "his brethren, and language remarkably beligerent, saying:

"We demanded the yeas and nays, and don't propose to submit to this usurpation, if we have got to go, we go on the journal by force and record our demand upon it."

Such defiant language brought Democrats, Republicans and spectators to their feet. Everybody looked for a free fight and the speaker's clerk to get the journal, but several paralyzing speeches were made, and all faces were ended when 10 o'clock was reached, and Mr. Bruner decided that no miscellaneous business could be taken up, and ordered attention to the calendar.

Myers used some remarkable language, declaring Thorpe to be the journal, for "he would be very liable to be taken down by his trucks if he tried it. We are not scared by these militia mayors." However, war's wrinkles in it was sootied by 10, and business commenced in earnest.

The English demands that there be an inquiry into the Komaroff incident, the Lesar line of boundary to be conceded if Russia will bind her self to make it binding. Russia, it is said will accept the latter, but will make no further inquiry in the future.

The reported battle in which there was great Russian loss is reaffirmed as officially confirmed in St. Petersburg.

COUNCIL OF WAR.

The Grand Council Decides That Russia Shall Advance to Herat and Occupy the City.

Justifying General Komaroff's Seizure of Penjdeh—If England Withholds to Avoid War the Must Evacuate Port Hamilton.

RUSSIA TO ADVANCE TO HERAT.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 1.—The Grand Council of War, held on Tuesday. The Council decided that the Russians should advance to Herat and occupy it. After the occupation a Russian administration will be immediately established. The war steamer Charizta is watching English war vessels in the Pacific Ocean. It is reported that seven English war ships are cruising in the vicinity of Nagasaki. Other Russian cruisers have been sent to watch these. It is thought here that the first conflict between the two powers will be in the Pacific.

The editorial in the Official Messenger, justifying General Komaroff's seizure of Penjdeh, after stating that Mr. Gladstone had informed M. de Giers that the Afghans had been requested not to advance beyond Ak-Tepa, concludes as follows: "England's policy in the Afghan war has been to request to stop their advance, and to exclude the possibility of assuming that the Afghans might advance their troops to the left bank of the Kushk River; but when General Komaroff captured Penjdeh, he found on the left bank of the Kushk River, outside of the Penjdeh district, a fortified Afghan post."

This is an extraordinary statement with its information, as it was a fact, and the Afghans had been requested to withdraw their troops from the left bank of the river. The Afghans, however, refused to do so, and the cause of the battle of the 30th. Hence it is evident that the intention attributed to General Komaroff of bringing on the collision is a contradiction of fact. General Komaroff took the initiative in the battle, and the evacuation of the left bank of the Kushk. Russia is unable at present to say why the Russians should have been interpreted in a different manner by the British officers attached to the Afghan detachment which occupied Penjdeh.

General Komaroff's dispatch of April 18 contains explanations regarding several points. The Russian Government, on April 17, concerning which General Komaroff's final opinion has not yet been received. The Moscow Gazette says that if England wishes to avoid war, she must evacuate Penjdeh. The Russian Government, however, her in the case of Japan, near Vladivostok, otherwise Russia will be obliged to occupy Herat.

LOVOSKO, May 1.—The Government has asked Russia to explain the advance of Russian troops at Marnik. Mr. Gladstone will probably make a statement in the House of Commons in regard to the matter. The Government is constant communication with Persia regarding her present relations with Russia. A dispatch received from St. Petersburg says: "The czar and his Ministers yesterday discussed the telegraphic summary of the London conference. The Council has been summoned to consider the full written dispatch and what reply shall be sent by Russia."

A dispatch from St. Petersburg states that the Russian Government has received General Komaroff's reply to the restrictions on the actions of the Russians previous to, and since the occupation of Penjdeh, contained in the Russian dispatch to the British Government. In reply, General Komaroff admits that he had received strict orders from his Government to refrain from making any forward movement pending the settlement of the Afghan question. He says, however, that he had endeavored to carry out these orders in good faith, but the officers under him had not been advised of the Government's wishes and therefore did not here were called by their London agents to the effect that a declaration of war might be expected within a few hours. The banks here and in Toronto have been telegraphed by their European correspondents to prepare a war policy.

A report is current that the Russian advance has been already opposed by the Afghans and that there is no alternative but an immediate and bloody conflict. John M. Young, the principal grain speculator in this city received orders to buy at once large quantities of wheat for shipment direct when navigation is opened, which is expected about May 15. A large fleet of steamers will load grain supplies for England. All orders placed here are from English agents, and there are no signs of Russian transactions.

A Russian who visited Victoria, B. C., a month ago under pretense of buying furs, is now known to have been a spy. He secured drawings of all the fortifications and harbor.

HALIFAX, May 1.—David Dudley Field's reception here has been most cordial. His coming has been regarded as an act of international courtesy. He dwelt at length on the evil results of the present system, its grossness and absurdity in many instances, and the urgent necessity of law reform. He detailed the history of law reform in the United States. His whole address was pregnant with points, and produced a profound impression. In the evening Mr. Field was banqueted by the Nova Scotia Bar and Law Faculty of the Dalhousie University. All the Judges of the Maritime Provinces, United States Consul General Fry, prominent merchants residing in Halifax, and dignitaries of this province were invited, and most complimentary speeches were made.

Billiard Tournament Closed—Slosson Wins First Prize.

NEW YORK, May 1.—George F. Slosson and Jacob Schaefer played the final game of the fourteen-inch billiard tournament last night. The hall was packed by billiard experts and others anxious to see the contest. Hundreds were unable to obtain admittance. It was fully half an hour before a referee could be agreed upon, but at length Matthew Higgins, of Hartford, Conn., was selected. Schaefer had the spot-ball. He opened well, but missed on the third shot. Slosson began badly, having a 9-10, but in his opening inning. The game was unusually well contested throughout, many of the experts repeating from time to time that it was "anybody's game." Slosson, who was more than a match for Schaefer, defeated his opponent by 191 points, thus securing the first prize. The score was: Slosson, 3, 25, 35, 5, 3, 2, 10, 7, 25, 0, 6, 13, 46, 30, 59, 15, 23, 15, 24, 16, 57, 16; total, 500; average, 22. THE DOMINION.

General Middleton's Forces Cannot Move Until Supplies on the Northside Are Brought Up.

Orders for Large Shipments of Wheat to England Upon the Opening of Navigation—David Dudley Field's Reception at Halifax.

THE HALF-BREED REVOLT.

WINNIPEG, May 1.—Messages received from Clark's Crossing give no explanation of the cutting of the wires, except that the wire was severed south of Humboldt. Messages from Middleton are to the effect that he sent an exploring party down to look for the steamer Northcote. The vessel was found eight miles south of Clark's Crossing stuck fast on a sand-bar and the crew perfectly helpless.

Middleton says he cannot move until the supplies from the steamer comes up. A large quantity of ammunition is also on board, together with Gatling guns, and Middleton must have ammunition, as the present supply is nearly exhausted. He has decided to send teams down for supplies and ammunition, and let the troops walk up, as the water in the river is so low that there is little hope of getting the vessel off, and proceeding until the water rises in the regular way by the melting of the snow in the mountains.

If supplies do not get in along the trail before the supplies from the steamer are forwarded and Middleton waits until they come, the delay is likely to be of considerable length. The dispatches from the steamer, left Swift Current Wednesday for Clark's Crossing, with more supplies and troops. As the barges are flat bottomed, and as the water is small, it is expected that they will be able to navigate the river to Clark's Crossing easily, and may take the rest of the Northcote's cargo to its destination.

Another dispatch from Middleton states that he sent scouts to scour the country for miles around the present camping-ground. They report being unable to sight any rebels, or find any trace of them. Middleton believes they are acquainted with the movements and adopting elusive tactics, hoping to surprise him suddenly when he begins to advance. Consequently upon the non-arrival at Clark's Crossing of the
